Getting there by car:

The City of Göttingen is located in the middle of Germany, set in the south of the state Lower Saxony. It is situated directly at the main north-south traffic axis. Thus, Göttingen is easily accessible by car via the motorway A7 and the federal roads B3 and B27 or by train and airplane. There are several direct train connections to Hamburg, Hannover, Berlin, Frankfurt and Munich.

Getting there by bus:

There are two bus stations on the North Campus: Tammannstraße and Goldschmidtstraße. Both stations are within walking distance of the institute.

The following lines go to the North Campus:

- 21, 22 direction Nikolausberg or
- 41 Direction Weende-Ost

The timetables can be found on the website (www.goevb.de) of the Göttingen public transport company.
