Faculty of Humanities:

Following the resolution of the Faculty Council of the Faculty of Humanities on 20.04.2022 and the opinion of the Senate on 18.05.2022, the Presidential Board of the Georg-August-Universität Göttingen approved on 25.05.2022 the ninth amendment of the examination and study regulations for the consecutive Master's degree programme „Arabic-Islamic Studies" in the version published on 06.10.2011 (Official Announcements I no. 9/2011 p. 530), last amended by resolution of the Presidential Board on 24.03.2021 (Official Announcements I no. 28/2021 p. 593) (§ 44 section 1 sentence 2 NHG in the version published on 26.02.2007 (Nds. GVBl. (Lower Saxony Law and Official Gazette) p. 69), last amended by Article 1 of the Act dated 27.01.2022 (Nds. GVBl. (Lower Saxony Law and Official Gazette) p. 54); § 41 section 2 sentence 2 NHG; §§ 37 section 1 sentence 3 no. 5 b), 44 section 1 sentence 3 NHG).

Examination and study regulations for the consecutive Master's degree programme „Arabic-Islamic Studies" at the University of Göttingen

§ 1 Scope

(1) The provisions of the "General Examination Regulations for Bachelor's and Master's Programmes and Other Study Programmes at the University of Göttingen" (APO) as well as the "Framework examination regulations for Master's degree programmes of the Faculty of Humanities" in their respective valid version apply to the Master's degree programme "Arabic-Islamic Studies" at the Georg-August-Universität Göttingen.

(2) These regulations govern the further provisions for the completion of the Master's degree programme "Arabic-Islamic Studies".

§ 2 Aims of the study programme; professional fields

(1) [1]The academic field of Arabic-Islamic Studies deals with history and culture, religion and intellectual history, law, the literatures as well as questions of secularity in the Islamic world with special consideration of the Arab countries. [2]Earlier eras are covered as well as modern developments. [3]Great importance is attached to the teaching of in-depth Arabic language skills as a prerequisite for source-oriented academic work and with a view to the graduates' future career opportunities. [4]By learning another language of the Islamic cultural area or another Semitic language, the view of the Islamic world is expanded geographically or deepened historically.

(2) The Master's degree programme "Arabic-Islamic Studies" prepares students for the following fields of activity:

    a)  Further qualification in the academic field and related activities in research and teaching.

    b)  Activities in the diplomatic service, national and international organisations, and in companies.

    c)  Activities in cultural mediation fields, such as museums, libraries, and publishing houses.

(3) [1]The Master's degree programme "Arabic-Islamic Studies" serves both academic and nonacademic qualifications. [2]Students demonstrate problem-solving skills in the study of the history and culture of Islam, the religion of Islam, Arabic literature, Islamic law, and issues of secularism in the Arab world. [3]The focus is on original texts that are of fundamental importance for understanding the religious, intellectual, and cultural history of Islam. [4]Students are introduced to current methodological issues and the international state of research in Arabic and Islamic Studies. [5]They gain specialised knowledge and a critical understanding of the larger context of the development of Islam as a religion and a way of life. [6]In language exercises, students deepen their passive and active command of the Arabic language. [7]Learning another language of the Islamic cultural area or a second Semitic language enables students to interpret non-Arabic sources on Islamic intellectual and cultural history.

(4) The examinations during the Master's degree programme determine whether the student has acquired the specialised knowledge and competencies necessary for the study objectives, has an overview of the relevant specialised contexts, and has the ability to work according to scientific principles, to communicate scientific findings, and to reflect on and evaluate acquired knowledge and skills with regard to application contexts.

(5) [1]In the Master's degree programme "Arabic-Islamic Studies", students not only acquire specialised knowledge in a socio-politically highly topical field, but they are also encouraged to engage in civil society. [2]Students are encouraged to contribute to debates on the integration of migrants and to the teaching of central democratic values such as human rights and tolerance. [3]In order to promote civil courage and socially engaged personalities, the following specific courses are available in this degree programme: M.Ara.504 "History and Culture of Islam" and M.Ara.505 "Religion of Islam", M.Ara.604 "Secular Modernity and Islam" and SK.Ara.702 "Arabic-Islamic Studies Abroad". [4]Students are especially trained in responsible action, independent thinking, comprehensive specialised knowledge, and reflection on political, social, and cultural events. [5]The following competencies in particular are promoted:

- Cultural understanding and intercultural competence: The courses on Arabic literature train the students' awareness of the creative inclusion of historical and political topics, but also of the contemporary historical conditionality of literature. This creates an awareness of the culture of Islamic countries beyond religion, which can be productively introduced into socio-political debates and contribute to intercultural understanding.

- Creative thinking, self-determination and personality development: The high degree of self-determination through the broad range of choices and in the area of key competencies contributes to personality development, encourages initiative and creative thinking.

§ 2 a Recommended previous knowledge

[1]When taking an English-language study option or an English-language study focus, a solid knowledge of German is required as part of the acquisition of a second language of the Islamic cultural area/second Semitic language and with corresponding module assignments. [2]Students whose knowledge of German is lower are strongly recommended to take German courses at an early stage.

§ 3 Structure of the course of study; course contents and course of study

(1) The programme begins in the winter semester.

(2) The degree programme is not suitable for part-time study.

(3) The degree programme comprises 120 credits (ECTS credits; abbreviated: C), which are distributed as follows:

    a. core subject studies 78 C:

        aa. „Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" (German-language study option) or „Arabic-Islamic Studies" (English-language study option) amounting to 78 C

        bb. „Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" (German-language study option) or „Arabic-Islamic Studies" (English-language study option) amounting to 42 C combined with an approved module package in a different subject amounting to 36 C or with two approved module packages in a different subject amounting to 18 C each, or

    b. professionalisation area 12 C;

    c. Master's thesis 30 C.

[2]The language of instruction and examination of the respective study option can be taken from the designations in the module overview.

(4)[1] The study- and examination-related achievements are to be completed in compulsory, compulsory elective and elective modules. [2]They are specified in a binding manner in the module overview (appendix I). [3]For recommendation on the appropriate structure of the course of studies, please refer to the sample curriculums enclosed in appendix II. [4]The list of modules is published separately; it is part of these regulations insofar as the modules are listed in the module directory (appendix I).

(5) [1]The core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" or "Arabic-Islamic Studies" with a total of 78 C includes a study focus in "Islamisches Recht" (in German) or a study focus in "Intellectual Histories of the Arab World" (in English). [2]In the core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft " with a total of 42 C, a study focus in "Islamisches Recht" (in German) can be taken. [3]The core subject studies "Arabic-Islamic Studies" with a total of 42 C includes a study focus in "Intellectual Histories of the Arab World" (in English). [4]The module overview regulates the details.

(6) [1]In the core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft " (German-language study option) with a total of 42 C, students complete three modules in the first three semesters from the available subject areas of History and Culture of Islam, Religion of Islam, Arabic Literature, Islamic Law and Arabic Language Practice. [2]In parallel, students acquire in-depth knowledge of grammar and lexis in the first year of study. [3]Students are able to actively use the language. [4]In the master colloquium, candidates develop a concept for their final thesis. [5]The study programme also includes solid basic knowledge of another language of the Islamic cultural area (e.g. Turkish or Persian) or of the Semitic language family (e.g. Syriac, Biblical Hebrew or Modern Hebrew) totalling 12 C.

(7) [1]In the core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" comprising 78 C with the study focus "Islamisches Recht" comprising 44 C, students acquire extensive knowledge of legal theory and legal practice. [2]They deal with various topics from the field of Islamic law. [3]They are introduced to research on the religion of Islam and Islamic law and learn to independently develop questions that are relevant to modern legal discourse. [4]The module "Technical Language, Legal Terminology" focuses on an intensive diachronic and synchronic examination of legal terminology. [5]The extensive integration of central events of the Faculty of Law and the simultaneously very high requirements of Arabic language skills enable students to quickly recognize Islamic legal texts from these areas, to analyze them and to classify them in their contemporary contexts.

(8) [1]In the core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" comprising 42 C with the study focus "Islamisches Recht", students acquire comprehensive legal-theoretical and legal-practical knowledge of subject areas of Islamic law. [2]Through the integration of the module "Technical Language, Legal Language", the second Semitic language is omitted. [3]Further, courses from the law faculty sharpen the requirement profile.

(9) [1]In the core subject studies "Arabic-Islamic Studies" comprising 78 C with the study focus "Intellectual Histories of the Arab World" comprising 50 C, students acquire extensive specialised knowledge of the intellectual history of the Arab world from late antiquity to modern times. [2]They will deal with the areas of history, culture and religion of the Arab-Islamic world. [3]They will be introduced to research on the Hadith, ethics and education, and secularism, and will learn to independently develop and answer questions relevant to intellectual history as well as to understanding current discourses in Islamic studies and society in the Arab-Islamic world. [4]The module "Hadith Studies" focuses on the teaching and application of innovative isnad-cum-matn analysis. [5]The module "Ethics and Education in Islam" explores the foundations and developments of religious, social and scientific phenomena that have defined Islamic societies up to the modern age. [6]The module "Secular Modernity and Islam" focuses on discourses and phenomena from the 20th and 21st centuries at the intersection of secularity and Islam. [7]Continuous cooperation with the Faculty of Theology and partner universities in the Arab and Islamic world is an important building block for promoting students' linguistic, intercultural and interdisciplinary competencies.

(10) In the core subject studies "Arabic-Islamic Studies" with a total of 42 C and a study focus in "Intellectual Histories of the Arab World", students acquire extensive specialised knowledge of the intellectual history of the Arab world from late antiquity to modern times. [2]In the first three semesters, students complete three modules from the available choices of Hadith Studies, Ethics and Education, Secularism, and Arabic Literature. [3]In the first year of study, in-depth knowledge of grammar and lexis is acquired in parallel. [4]Students will be able to actively use the language. [5]In the master colloquium, candidates develop a concept of their final thesis. [6]The study programme also includes solid basic knowledge of another language of the Islamic cultural area (including Turkish or Persian) or of the Semitic language family (including Syriac, Biblical Hebrew or Modern Hebrew), amounting to a total of 12 C.

(11) Key competencies are recommended, especially in the areas of methodological competence, social competence, and language competence, such as:
   a) Languages (strongly recommended are Latin and English, but also French, Russian and Greek) both for future scholars and students who want to work in international institutions;
   b) Further education in IT and basic knowledge of economics for the field of work in international financial cooperation, development aid, and economic cooperation;

c) Rhetorical and communication skills, as well as the development of leadership and management skills, are useful in the work fields of international cooperation as well as in diplomatic and other services linked to politics or in institutional work with foreigners;

d) Media communication, speaking and writing training are recommended for students who will work in the media field.

(12) The module overview also describes the module packages "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" with a total of 36 C or 18 C, the module packages "Intellectual Histories of the Arab World" with a total of 36 C or 18 C, and "Islamisches Recht " with a total of 36 C, which can be included in another Master's degree programme.

§ 3 a Subject-specific types of examination

[1]In addition to the types of examination provided for in the APO (General examination and programme rules and regulations for B.A. and M.A. programmes), examinations may take the form as follows: Portfolio. [2]A portfolio ("document folder") serves to document one's own course of study and learning process in a reflective and commentary manner. Various shorter tasks are summarised in a portfolio (e.g. lesson logs and reading summaries).

§ 3 b Language of the study programme

[1]The degree programme can be studied in German or English. [2]The language of instruction in the courses is usually German or English. [3]In addition, Arabic is also used as the language of instruction and practice. [4]Examinations can be written in German or English, depending on the study option. [5]Examinations of compulsory modules must be completed in the language of the chosen study option.

§ 4 Admission to the Master's thesis

As a prerequisite for admission to the Master's thesis Credits must be passed as follows:

a. In the case of core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" (German-language study option) or "Arabic-Islamic Studies" (English-language study option) to the extent of 78 C compulsory, elective and optional modules of the Master's programme to the extent of 70 C, b. In the case of core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" (German-language study option) or "Arabic-Islamic Studies" (English-language study option) to the extent of 42 C, compulsory, elective and optional modules of the Master's programme to the extent of 70 C, of which at least 30 C must have been passed in the core subject studies "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" or "Arabic-Islamic Studies".

§ 5 Retaking examinations to improve grades

It is not possible to retake passed examinations for the purpose of improving grades; the provision of § 16 a section 3 sentence 2 APO remains unaffected.

§ 6 Study as a module package

(1) [1]In the course of study "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" as a module package with a total of 36 C (in German), three modules from the subject areas available for selection are completed in the course of the first three semesters. [2]In each of these modules, 6 C are acquired through participation in source work and a presentation or through practical language performance. [3]In the first year of study, in-depth knowledge of grammar and lexis as well as active command of the language are acquired in parallel. [4]The acquisition of basic knowledge of another language of the Islamic cultural area (e.g. Turkish or Persian) or of the Semitic language family (e.g. Syriac, Biblical Hebrew or Modern Hebrew) through import modules totaling 12 C is mandatory.

(2) [1]In the course of study "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" as a module package amounting to 18 C (in German), students acquire 6 C each in two modules through participation in source work and a presentation or through language practical achievements. [2]They perfect their knowledge of grammar and lexis as well as their active command of the language in the exercises "Arabic for advanced learners" to the extent of 6 C.

(3) In the course of study "Islamisches Recht" as a module package of 36 C (in German), students acquire in-depth knowledge of Islamic law, namely of its origins in its present-day state form, acquire the special legal language (language of international conventions, laws, ordinances, court decisions, etc.) and gain an insight into fundamental areas of legal studies through the connection with the Faculty of Law.

(4) In the course of study "Intellectual Histories of the Arab World" as a module package of 36 C (in English), three modules from the subject areas available for selection are completed in the course of the first three semesters. In each of these modules, 6 C are acquired through participation in source work and a presentation or through practical language achievements in the field of Arabic. In the first year of study, in-depth knowledge of grammar and lexis as well as active command of the language are acquired in parallel. The acquisition of basic knowledge of another language of the Islamic cultural area (e.g. Turkish or Persian) or of the Semitic language family (e.g. Syriac, Biblical Hebrew or Modern Hebrew) through import modules totaling 12 C is mandatory.

(5) In the course of study "Intellectual Histories of the Arab World" as a module package amounting to 18 C (in English), the students acquire 6 C each in two modules through participation in source work and a presentation or through practical language achievements oriented towards Arabic. They perfect their knowledge of grammar and lexis as well as their active command of the language in the exercises "Arabic for advanced learners" amounting to 6 C.

(6) [1]The language of instruction in the courses is usually German or English. [2]In addition, Arabic is used as the language of instruction and practice.

§ 7 Comment on the courses

[1]An annotated list of courses is prepared for each semester and is available towards the end of the previous semester. [2]It contains more detailed information on the contents of courses that must be attended as part of a module. [3]It provides literature references for preparation, gives information on compulsory reading as well as on the study obligations to be fulfilled in each case, and informs about the place and time of the course and the lecturers involved. [4]In addition, it contains important information and notes for the implementation of the study programme, such as registration and examination modalities and dates, office hours of the lecturers; opening hours of the secretary's office and library, etc.

§ 8 Student Counselling; Obligatory Student Counselling

(1) The specialised study advisory service is offered by the lecturers involved in the degree programme, while advice on examination matters is provided by the Examination Office of the Faculty of Humanities.

(2) The Central Student Advisory Office of the university is in charge of general study advice, especially regarding inter-faculty questions.

(3) In addition, students should take advantage of the study advisory service especially in the following cases:
- after failing an examination twice,
- in the event of any deviations from the standard course length,
- if changing the module package, study focus, degree programme or university,
- before a planned course of studies abroad,
- at the end of the second semester or at the beginning of the third semester of studies.

(4) [1]The choice of an English-language study option or enrollment in an English-language study focus according to § 3 section 6 requires the participation in a compulsory study counseling. [2]This consultation must take place at the latest before registration for the first examination.

§ 9 Entry into force; transitional provisions

(1) These regulations shall enter into force retroactively on 01.10.2015 following their publication in the Official Announcements I of the Georg-August Universität of Göttingen.

(2) At the same time, the Examination regulations for the Master's degree programme "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" in the version of the announcement of 18.09.2009 (Official Announcements I No. 28/2009 p. 2784) as well as the Study Regulations for the Master's degree programme "Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" in the version of the announcement of 18.09.2009 (Official Announcements I No. 28/2009 p. 2791) shall expire.

(3)[1] Students who began their studies before an amendment to these Examination and Study Regulations came into force and who were continuously enrolled in this degree programme or continuously admitted to the module package „Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" or "Islamisches Recht" shall be examined according to the version applicable before this amendment came into force. [2] In the case of examinations still to be taken, this does not apply to module directory and lists, unless the protection of a student's legal entitlements requires a deviating decision by the examination committee. [3]A deviating decision is possible in particular in cases in which an examination or a partial examination requirement can be repeated or a compulsory or required compulsory elective module has been substantially changed or cancelled. [4]The examination committee may make general regulations in this regard. [5]Upon application, students, according to sentence 1, shall be examined in total according to the provisions of the amended regulations. [5]Examinations according to these regulations in the version valid prior to the entry into force of an amendment shall be taken for the last time in the fourth semester after the entry into force of this amendment.

Appendix I   Module overview

1. Master's degree programme „Arabic-Islamic Studies"

At least 120 C must be acquired; modules already completed as part of the Bachelor's programme cannot be taken into account; examination-related achievements can only be taken into account in one module of this programme at a time.

a. Core subjects studies „Arabistik/Islamwissenschaft" comprising 78 C with the study focus „Islamisches Recht"

aa. Compulsory modules
